HIS PA BUSTED.

"Say, can't I sell you some stock in a silver mine?" asked the bad boy of the groceryman, as he came in the store and pulled from his vest pocket a document printed on parchment paper, and representing several thousand dollars stock in a silver mine.

"Lookabere," says the groceryman, as he turned pale and thought of telephoning to the police station for a detective, "you haven't been stealing your father's mining stock, have you? Great heavens, it has come at last! I have known all the time that you would turn out to be a burglar, or a defaulter, or a robber of some kind. Your father has the reputation of having a bonanza in a silver mine, but if you go lugging his silver stock around he will be ruined. Now, you go right back home and put that stock in your pa's safe, like a good boy."

"Put it in the safe! Oh, no, we keep it in a box stall now, in the barn. I will trade you this thousand dollars in stock for two heads of lettuce, and get pa to sign it over to you if you say so. Pa told me I could have the whole trunk full if I wanted it, and the hired girls are using the silver stock to clean windows, and to kindle fires, and pa has quit the church, and he won't belong to any concern that harbors bilks. What is a bilk?" said the boy, as he opened a candy jar and took out four sticks of hoarhound candy.

"A bilk," said the groceryman, as he watched the boy, "is a fellow that plays a man for candy, or money, or anything, and don't intend to return an equivalent. You are a small-sized bilk. But what's the matter with your pa and the church, and what has the silver mine got to do with it?"

"Well, you remember that exhorter that was here last fall, that used to board around with the church people all the week, and talk about Zion, and laying up treasures where the moths wouldn't gnaw them, and they wouldn't get rusty, and where thieves wouldn't pry off the hinges. He was one that used to go home with ma from prayer meetings, when pa was down town, and who wanted to pay off the church debt in solid silver bricks. He's the bilk. I guess if pa should get him by the neck he would jerk nine kinds of revealed religion out of him. Oh, pa is hotter than he was when the hornets took the lunch off of him. When you strike a pious man on his pocket book it hurts him. That fellow prayed and sung like an angel, and boarded around like a tramp. He stopped at our house over a week, and he had specimens of rock that were chuck full of silver and gold, and he and pa used to sit up nights and look at it. You could pick pieces of silver out of the rock as big as buck shot, and he had some silver bricks that were beautiful. He had been out in Colorado and found a hill full of silver rock, and he wanted to form a stock company and dig out millions of dollars. He didn't want anybody but pious men, that belonged to the church, in the company, and I think that was one thing that caused pa to unite with the church so suddenly. I know he was as wicked as he could be, a few days before he joined the church, but the revivalist, with his words about the beautiful beyond, where all shall dwell in peace, and sing praises, and description of that Colorado mountain where the silver stuck out so you could hang your hat on it, converted pa. That man's scheme was to let all the church people who were in good standing, and who had plenty of money, into the company, and when the mine began to run dividends by the car load, they could give largely to the church, and pay the debts of all the churches, and put down carpets, and fresco the ceiling. The man said he felt that he had been steered on to that silver mine by a higher power, and his idea was to work it for the glory of the cause. He said he liked pa, and would make him vice-president of the company. Pa, he bit like a bass, and I guess he invested $5,000 in stock, and ma she wanted to come in, and she put in a thousand dollars that she had laid up to buy some diamond earrings, and the man gave pa a lot of stock to sell to other members of the church. They are all into it, even the minister. He drew his salary ahead, and all the deacons they come in, and the man went back to Colorado with about $30,000 of good pious money. Yesterday pa got a paper from Colorado giving the whole snap away, and the pious man has been spending the money in Denver, and whooping it up. Pa suspected something was wrong two weeks ago, when he heard that the pious man had been on a toot in Chicago, and he wrote to a man in Denver who used to get full with pa years ago, when they were both on the turf, and pa's friend said the man that sold the stock was a fraud, and that he didn't own no mine, and that he borrowed the samples of ore and silver brick from a pawnbroker in Denver. I guess it will break pa up for a while, though he is well enough fixed with mortgages and things. But it hurts him to be took in. He lays it all to ma. He says if she hadn't let that exhorter for the silver mine go home with her, this would not have occurred, and ma says she believes pa was in partnership to beat her out of her thousand dollars she was going to buy a pair of pious diamond earrings with. Oh, it is a terror over at the house now. Both the hired girls put in all the money they had, and took stock, and they threatened to sue pa for arson, and they are going to leave to-night, and ma will have to do the work. Don't you never try to get rich quick," said the boy, as he peeled a herring and took a couple of crackers.

"Never mind me," said the groceryman. They don't catch me on any of their silver mines. But I hope this will have some influence on you, and teach you to respect your pa's feelings, and not play any jokes on him, while he is feeling so bad over his being swindled."

"Oh, I don't know about that. I think when a man is in trouble, if he has a good little boy to take his mind away from his troubles, and get him mad at something else, it rests him. Last night we had hot maple syrup and biscuit for supper, and pa had a saucer full in front of him, just a steaming. I could see he was thinking too much about his mining stock, and I thought if there was anything I could do to take his mind off of it, and place it on something else, I would be doing a kindness that would be appreciated. I sat on the right of pa, and when he wasn't looking I pulled the table cloth so the saucer of red-hot syrup dropped off in his lap. Well, you'd a dide to see how quick his thoughts turned from his physical misfortunes. There was about a pint of hot syrup, and it went all over his lap, and you know how hot melted maple syrup is, and how it sort of clings to anything. Pa jumped up and grabbed hold of his pants legs to pull them away from himself, and he danced around and told ma to turn the hose on him, and then he took a pitcher of ice water and poured it down his pants, and he said the condemned old table was getting so rickety that a saucer wouldn't stay on it, and I told pa if he would put some tar on his legs, the same kind he told me to put on my lips to make my moustache grow, the syrup wouldn't burn so, and then he cuffed me, and I think he felt better. It is a great thing to get a man's mind off his troubles, but where a man hasn't got any mind, like you, for instance—"

At this point the groceryman picked up a fire poker, and the boy went out in a hurry, and hung up a sign in front of the grocery. "Cash paid for fat dogs."—Peck's Sun.
